

Hänninen M.-J. (1999) “The Dream of Caecilia Metella: Aspects of Inspiration and Authority in Late Republican Roman Religion”, in P. Setälä and L. Savunen (eds), Female Networks and the Public Sphere in Roman Society Acta Instituti Romani Finlandiae 22, Rom, 29-38.

The article constitutes a case study of women’s public roles and religious activity in Late Republican Rome. It focuses on the noble woman Caecilia Metella, first mentioned in an oration of Cicero, and her role in restoring the temple of Juno Sospita.