

Sjöberg, B. (2014) “The Greek oikos: a space for interaction, revisited and reconsidered”, in L. Karlsson, S. Carlsson & J. Blid Kullberg (eds), Labrys: Studies Presented to Pontus Hellström, Boreas 35, Uppsala, 315–27.

The article reconsiders the Greek oikos as a space for social interaction and, by implication, how interaction may have worked to help define the social and physical boundaries between oikos and polis. This article sets out to apply intersectionality as a means of understanding multiple oppressions within the realm of the ancient Greek society.