

De Marre, M. (2020) “Warfare and Women in the Ancient World”, Akroterion 65, 1-44.

In this article the experiences of a group who had little or no voice in the records of war, that area considered central to the identity of the elite male figures, is explored. For the voices of women and other marginalised groups in the arena of war, we need to not only read between the lines of the literary works of antiquity, but also need to include documentary sources and visual imagery.