

Sjöberg, B. (forthcoming) “Sex, gender and space: norms and the construction of identity in the private space of the andron in ancient Greek society”.

The article discuss identity and the construction of social maps. It does so by analysing intersecting identities as sexuality, status, gender and age within the private space of the oikos. It sets out to investigate how normative attitudes defined identity and as a result controlled the life of the individual and served to construct hierarchically positioned identities.
