

Feitosa, L. (2013) The Archaeology of Gender, Love and Sexuality in Pompeii, Oxford / England: British Archaeological Reports.

In text I propose reflections on gender, particularly with sexual and affective relations, among Pompeian popular strata. This is a relatively new area of research for Antiquity, and very little has been done in this vein with a focus on popular Roman segments. I take this opportunity to invite the readers to join me in this journey, the following pages, for to inquiry into the world of popular class love and sexual relations in ancient Roman Pompeii.