

Fabre-Serris, J., Keith, A. and Klein, F. (eds) (2021) Identities, Ethnicities and Gender in Antiquity, De Gruyter, Berlin/ Boston.

The object of this book is to examine how the intersection of ethnicity and gender can illuminate the way the Ancients spoke of identity. The papers collected investigate how gender has been integrated as a secondary but highly significant factor in Greek and Roman discussion of how better to understand both who they themselves were, culturally speaking, and who these others with whom they had come into contact were.

Table of contents

Introduction – Jacqueline Fabre-Serris, Florence Klein, Alison Keith

1. Masculinity, dress and body

François Lissarrague - Ionians, Egyptians, Thracians: Ethnicity and Gender in Attic Vase-Painting

Florence Gherchanoc - Dress, ethnic identity, and gender in the Achaemenid Empire: Greek views on the Persians, and political ideology in the classical time

2. Gender, political leaders and ethnic identity

Giulia Sissa - What Artemisia Knew: The Political Intelligence of Artemisia of Halicarnassus.

Alison Keith - Cicero's Verres, Verres' Women

Jacqueline Fabre-Serris - Identities and Ethnicities in the Punic Wars: Livy's portrait of the Carthaginian Sophonisba

3. Cleopatra's survival and metamorphosis in Roman Poetry

Florence Klein - Gendered Intertextuality: Feminizing the Alexandrian Models in Propertius' Actian Poetry.

Andrew Feldherr - Caesar or Cleopatra? Lucan's Tragic Queen

4. Love, oriental ethnicity and Gender in Roman literature

Federica Bessone - The Indiscreet Charm of the Exotic: Amores Peregrini as Explorations of Identity in Roman Poetry

Judith Hallett - Latin literary lenses on Phoenician female speech

Alison Sharrock - Babylonians in Thebes: some Ovidian stories of barbarians and foreigners

5. Constructing or deconstructing female ethnicity in late Antiquity

Therese Fuhrer - Thessalian Witches: an ethnic construct in Apuleius' Metamorphoses

Charles Delattre - Exemplary Gallic Wives in the Erotikos and Mulierum Virtutes of Plutarch. Stereotypes and Comparisons

Henriette Harich Africa, famula Romae. Constructions of ethnic identity in Claudian's panegyrics